Equine Targeted De-Worming Protocol

High levels of parasites lead to gastrointestinal problems which can include colic, weight loss and general un-thriftiness. In our area, we have the luxury of having a winter that can greatly reduce parasitic egg counts in our pastures. However, there has recently been increased incidence of Ivermectin resistance in roundworms. Our practice has recognized this increase, in that 82% of our regularly dewormed horses still having worms. Double dosing of fenbendazole can eliminate this problem. Our part of the United States has the third highest prevalence of tapeworms in the nation. Tapeworms are rarely seen on fecal exams. We like to believe we can keep our horses and pastures free of parasites by worming regularly. But the fact is, without regular fecal exams and rotational worming we can never be truly sure. At Westview Veterinary Hospital, we have taken the thought process out of your worming protocol and developed pre-packaged wormers with an included schedule. If any worms are noticed on our scheduled fecal exams, different wormers can be prescribed to eliminate those parasites before they can cause damage. These scheduled worming guidelines are as follows.

Spring

- Fecal Egg Count on ALL HORSES. Identify low, moderate, and high shedders.
- De-worm ALL horses with moxidectin/praziquantel (Quest Plus) or fenbendazole (Panacur Power Pack)

Fall

- This is based solely on environment and risk. It will be customized based on these factors.

High Shedders

- These are horses with greater than 250 eggs/gram and horses under the age of 3 years. The types of wormers and interval is based on FECR (Fecal Egg Count Resistance) from further fecal testing.
